

A Picture is Worth 1,000 Words

2nd Annual Team Up for Photojournalism

Event Host: Kevin White

Last year MCC launched a NEW event called “Team Up for Photojournalism”. This event expanded members’ photographic experience and gave members an opportunity to build relationships through a team effort. By popular demand “Team Up for Photojournalism” is back again.

Photojournalism is described as a series of images that tell a news story, reflects a social viewpoint or expresses an opinion. Newspapers typically present multiple related images to tell a story, since a picture is worth a thousand words. Your assignment is to create a photojournalistic story with up to 5 images.

Team Effort in photography is unique and MCC would like to encourage more interaction with members. MCC would like you to form a team of 1 to 5 Club photographers and together tell a photo journalistic story.

Submissions will be presented on March 4, 2010 at MCC’s general meeting. Teams are also encouraged to exhibit their submissions on March 4, 2010 and also in the Gallery on the MCC website in the format of still images.

Additional rules:

- Submissions are due February 4, 2010.
- Team Signup: Collect your own team and register at a regular meeting or signup individually and you will be randomly assigned to a new team.
- Individuals may also opt out of teaming up and submit a solo presentation.
- Individuals may enter up to 2 submissions with the same or different team members.
- Title page counts as an image
- Photodex (or equiv) is recommended.
- Background music: OK
- Voice Narration: No
- Presentation time: photos supported by text – max. 3 minutes
photos supported by music – max. 2 minutes